Taylor's college closing bill does not include Gulf Park

Mississippi legislators face the hard choice this year of raising taxes or cutting programs, Senator Gene Taylor of Bay St. Louis said Tuesday in defense of his bill that would close the state's four smallest universities.

Taylor, who represents Hancock County and portions of Harrison and Jackson Counties, added that he strongly opposes a recommendation of the State College Board that includes closing the Gulf Park campus of the University of Southern Mississippi in Long Beach along with two small universities and other degree-granting programs.

"I want to assure Coast residents that I have no intention of closing Gulf Park and will do everything in my power to keep it open. The state board cannot do it. It has to be done by the Legislature and I don't see any strong movement along those lines," Taylor said.

"The eight off-campus centers in the state have a total enrollment of 2,785, and almost half of that is the Long Beach branch of the University of Southern Mississippi," he said. The student body consists mostly of working people who have a chance to earn credits for a bachelor's or an advanced degree. This is not a program that should be cut, since it offers the only opportunity working people have for a higher education.

"Programs such as these need to be preserved and strengthened. What this state cannot afford is to maintain small universities," he said.

"Mississippi's costs per university student are higher than those in the four adjoining states, because we are living beyond our means trying to support eight universities," he said.

Taylor's bill would close Alcorn State University, Delta State University, Mississippi Valley State University, and the Mississippi University for Women.

"I chose these four because they are the smallest," he said.

"Enrollment at these schools ranges from a low of 2,375 at Alcorn to a high of 2,842 at Delta. Of the remaining four - Jackson State, Mississippi State, the University of Mississippi, and the University of Southern Mississippi - enrollment ranged from a high of 11,378 at Mississippi State to a low of 5,576 at Jackson State," Taylor said.

"All universities are subject to cuts this year. The appropriations for the State College Board have been cut by $14.2 million and more cuts are expected," he said.

"The cuts will continue as the federal government moves to balance its budget and Mississippi spends more and more on early education, with kindergarten alone costing about $35 million," he said.

"Starting with the Education Reform Act of 1982, for the first time in more than 20 years, there is mandatory education, and the first time ever for state-funded kindergarten and teaching assistants in the first three grades."

"There was a $2,400 pay raise last year for teachers, another $1,000 this year, and another $1,000 is proposed for the next legislative session. It is easy to see that our state has taken some very positive steps to improve education in Mississippi," Taylor said.

"But too much of our money is being squandered on duplicate programs in higher education. The only answer, aside from a dramatic tax increase, is to consolidate programs and spend our money on fewer universities so we can have the kind of libraries, laboratory facilities and physical plants that will give us four outstanding universities rather than eight being starved on the vine," he said.

Taylor called his bill a starting point for discussion in the Senate.

"I am sure there will be amendments offered. If the majority of the senators feel that one school should stay and another should go, that's how democracy works. But every man in the Senate knows that something has to be done to improve the university level as we have done at the kindergarten to the grade twelve level," he said.

BEACH ROAD REPAIRS—A Beat One road crew makes preparations to pour concrete under a section of Beach Road near the Paddlewheel Motel in Clermont Harbor Monday afternoon. Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge, center, checks with a worker measuring the depth of a hole. Courge said he was checking a cracked concrete box culvert after Hurricane Juan and discovered a hollow spot under the road about four feet deep and several feet wide running alongside the culvert. Workers had to cut several holes through the road surface to pump in concrete to fill the area because of danger to vehicles. The road had to be closed Monday afternoon and Monday night for the project. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

Mississippi unemployment back in double-digits

JACKSON— The jobless rate for Mississippi climbed to 10.0 percent in December, up from November's revised rate of 9.5 percent, according to Mississippi Employment Security Commission Executive Director Cohen Robertson.

The December, 1984 unemployment rate stood at 10.3 percent, indicating an annual decline of three-tenths of a percentage point. The 10.0 unemployment rate in December remained higher than the 6.7 percent unadjusted rate for the nation.

MESC figures showed 112,300 unemployed and 1,007,000 employed persons in a total labor force of 1,119,300.

Total employment was down some 12,400 from November, but showed a dramatic increase of 44,300 over December of the previous year.

The monthly decline in employment and corresponding rise in unemployment can be attributed almost entirely to a seasonal decrease in agricultural employment of nearly 10,000 persons.

On the positive side, employment counted at the place of work showed increases of 1,000 and 15,600 over the previous month and year, respectively.

Eve McDonald dropped from seniors program

BY DENA BISNETTE
A South Mississippi Planning and Development District decision to change some aspects of its senior citizen programs has eliminated the Hancock County Office on Aging.

According to Eve McDonald, who has served as director of the Hancock County program for 14 years, the district notified her by letter that she will lose her job at the end of January.

Jane Kennedy, director of the district's aging division, said county offices on aging will eventually be eliminated in 15 South Mississippi counties.

She said she believes that the only way McDonald could be retained would be if the county paid her salary.

"We have to reduce the overall costs of our program to stay within the budget. We're also trying to target our scarce resources toward in-home services for those most in danger of becoming institutionalized," she explained.

She added that the senior citizen's center, housed in the old Valena C. Jones school building, would not be affected by the budget cuts or lack of a county office on aging.

"The county office on aging is basically just a management agency," Kennedy explained.

"Eve McDonald has been a good employee and has done a great deal for the elderly in Hancock County but with the combination of state and federal cuts I don't see from a budgetary level how we can keep her."

A traveling representative of the agency will help monitor the program after the office is eliminated and part-time, older workers known as senior aides will help with day-to-day operations.

Closing the county office will save about $21,000 per year, she added. That comes out of a budget of about $112,000 per year, $49,000 of which comes from the county.

McDonald said she was surprised when she received the notice and feels the county board of supervisors, the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland and possibly the Hancock County United Way should have had a part in the decision, since all are involved in supporting the program.

Bay St. Louis supplies its assistance by providing a building and maintenance, while Waveland, the county and the United Way all provide funding.

"The board of supervisors in particular has given us great support from the very beginning," McDonald said. "I feel the board has been insulted by not being notified."

Kennedy said the district's usual procedure does not include notifying the county about personnel changes.

McDonald also stated that she met Tuesday afternoon with Beat Five Supervisor James Travica who is a member of the district's board of directors.

She was told later that Travica had polled the other supervisors and found all of them in favor of retaining her as director.

Travica told her he had telephoned the district's executive director, Les Newcomb, and was told that McDonald would be reinstated.

On Wednesday morning, however, Newcomb could not be reached for comment and Kennedy said she was unable to confirm the alleged reinstatement.

In addition, McDonald stated that on Wednesday she was told she had been reinstated only for two weeks while Newcomb investigates the matter.

Officers complete training

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Bay St. Louis Police Officers Don Watson and Tom Ralph recently completed a week of advanced training in narcotics and dangerous drugs at the Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers Training Academy.

Ethel Thompson and Janis Haynes also completed an advanced dispatchers training session at the academy.

Chief Ray Murphy said this in-service training was part of an overall plan to improve efficiency and professionalism in the department.

"Training of this nature is necessary to keep up with the ever-changing pace of law enforcement,"

Evidence indicates arson

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The fire at 114 McDonald Lane on Christmas Day appears to have been arson, investigators said Wednesday.

Bay Police Chief Ray Murphy stated he has not yet received complete reports but from all indications he has so far, the fire was arson.

"We are still searching for information on what kind of accelerant was used," Murphy added.

An investigation is also still underway in the death of Frank Lombardo Jr., occupant of the house which burned.

Lombardo's body was discovered inside the house by firefighters after the fire was extinguished around 6:30 p.m. on Christmas Day.

Murphy said officers work on the investigation every day but there is still more footwork to be done.

"Once we get all the pieces together, we can start putting things in perspective," he said. "When you don't have all the pieces, people start guessing and we do not want to do that."

Bay school board, architects to eye kindergarten plans

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Bay St. Louis school officials will meet today with several architects to discuss plans for kindergarten classrooms.

Various architects were recently queried about interest in working with the school board to get plans for additional classroom space.

Superintendent J. D. McCulloch said Wednesday he had confirmations from five architects who planned to attend the 2 p.m. meeting.

At the meeting tentative plans for the eight kindergarten classrooms needed will be given to the architects along with the requirements for the rooms.

McCulloch said the need for utilities, restrooms and air conditioning will be emphasized while architects will also be informed that the district has only $350,000 to invest in the building project.

This amount must cover the construction as well as furnishings, McCulloch added.

According to McCulloch, two additional classrooms will be needed at North Bay Elementary and six will be constructed at Waveland Elementary.

Bay Catholic Elementary School to celebrate 'Catholic Schools Week'

Bay Catholic Elementary School, established in 1960 by the Sisters of St. Joseph, is one of 21 schools in the Diocese of Biloxi which will be celebrating "Catholic Schools Week" Feb. 4-6.

This year's theme is "Rainbow of Excellence."

"Catholic schools are themselves rainbows in their great diversity," said Principal Ann Allen.

"Historically, Bay Catholic School has opened its doors to those in the community who are interested in a total approach to the education of their child, spiritually, mentally, and physically," she said.

"A rainbow is not a rainbow if it lacks many colors. In addition to offering quality education, Bay Catholic School fosters respect for one's self and others in relationship to God. The moral development of each child is an essential part of our program," the principal continued.

"The challenge for Bay Catholic School is to make its rainbow of excellence a sign of God's love for the larger community. During this celebration, we open our doors in a special way to those who might be interested in sending their children to our school," she continued.

"We will welcome you to our school during open house Feb. 4, 5, and 6 from 10 a.m. until 2:30 p.m."

"If you are interested in learning more about the school, please come to the school or call 467-5158," she said.

New phone cable being laid in Bay

South Central Bell is placing 10,200 feet of submarine fiber optic cable across the bay between Bay St. Louis and Pass Christian.

Upon completion of the placing operation, the cable should stretch completely across the bottom of the bay without a splice.

This length of cable was shipped on one reel with an approximate weight of 86,000 pounds.

This cable contains strands of optical fiber made of specially developed glass the thickness of a human hair.

These fibers are 10,000 times more transparent than window glass and about twice as strong as steel wire of similar gauge.

"Although customers won't see much difference, this state-of-the-art system can handle large call volumes and is immune to electromagnetic interference and moisture," explained Pat Santucci, district manager.

"Upon completion, this will be the longest submarine fiber optic cable in South Central Bell's five state area," Santucci added.

HUD eases homebuyer insurance refund rules

Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Samuel R. Pierce, Jr., today announced that a new ruling permits HUD to refund Federal Housing Administration (FHA) insurance premiums to eligible homebuyers who have paid off their FHA insured loans.

"We will now examine all claims which had previously been denied under the six-year Statute of Limitations," Secretary Pierce said, "as well as claims from others who have not yet applied."

The ruling by the Comptroller General eliminates the eligibility period for these refunds, called distributive shares. Previously, the Statute of Limitations prevented HUD from playing distributive shares unless a claim was filed within six years.

The Comptroller General has granted HUD's request to make an exception to the Statute in the case of distributive shares, and now payments can be made without regard to the six year rule.

Secretary Pierce asked for an exception to the ruling in April 1985 because lenders sometimes fail to notify HUD of the termination of FHA insurance, or those eligible for the shares cannot be located.

HUD insures home loans made by qualified FHA mortgage lenders to eligible homebuyers. Lenders collect insurance premiums as part of home mortgage payments and pass the premiums on to HUD, which uses the money to pay insurance claims and other costs associated with the FHA insurance program.

By the time the mortgage loan is approximately twelve years old, income from the invested premiums begins to exceed the expenses. Using actuarial methods, HUD then computes annually an amount that is eligible for refund as distributive shares.

Once HUD is informed by the lender that FHA mortgage insurance has been terminated, it notifies the prospective claimants of their eligibility and the amount of refund. The majority of refunds range from $100 to $700.

HUD has begun to notify more than 1200 former mortgagors whose claims were previously denied. Each will be informed of the change in the law and sent the necessary claim form, HUD-2042.

Claimants are asked to complete the form and return it to: The Department of Housing and Urban Development, Distributive Shares Branch, Room 2239, 451 7th St. SW, Washington, D.C. 20410-3411.

City's grant application facing stiff competition

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
The Bay St. Louis City Council is facing 'very stiff competition' in securing a federal grant to help establish Baldwin Aircraft in Hancock County.

"The applications are very competitive and it is often difficult for cities in Mississippi to receive the grant," according to Steed Robinson of South Mississippi Planning and Development District.

The council recently voted to proceed with application for an Urban Development Action Grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development as an enticement for Baldwin to locate at Stennis Industrial Airpark.

The company plans to build 535 single-seat airplanes for the Peoples Republic of China with an initial employment of 1,500 people and a peak employment of 5,000.

In December the State Department of Economic Development approved the issuance of $20 million in industrial revenue bonds for the company's proposed manufacturing facility in Hancock County.

The $1 million UDAG being applied for by the city will not only be offered to Baldwin Aircraft at a low interest rate but will also enable $10 million of the industrial revenue bonds funds to be tax-free.

Without the UDAG participation only $1 million of the industrial revenue bond funds will be tax exempt.

"This grant program is designed to make a project happen which would otherwise not work," Robinson said Thursday.

A goal of the grant program is to revitalize decaying urban areas in the country primarily by stimulating private investment, he added.

"The grant provides an incentive for industry or other commercial establishments to make an investment that they otherwise would not make," Robinson said.

To be eligible to even apply for the grant a city must be included in a list of distressed cities published in the Federal Register.

According to Robinson, Gulf Coast municipalities other than Bay St. Louis included on the list of distressed cities are Pass Christian, Gulfport, Biloxi, Moss Point and Pascagoula.

One factor that makes the grant hard to obtain is that 70 percent of the rating factors are beyond a city's control, he said.

"And about 40 percent of this criteria seems to be weighted to cities in the northeastern states," Robinson added.

Included among factors beyond a city's control are level or rate of housing stock that is pre-1940, level of poverty, population decline, per capita income and whether or not the area is a 'labor surplus' area.

One factor favoring northeastern cities is the age of the housing stock which counts 20 percent on the rating scale for the grant, Robinson added.

Population decline is another factor that counts against southern cities because the south is growing at this time, he said.

Robinson said on the 30 percent of the rating scale that can be controlled by cities, Bay St. Louis should score very well.

This includes ability to administer grants based on past experience, ratio of private investment to the number of UDAG dollars being requested for the project, number of new permanent jobs and number of new low income jobs created by the project.

Robinson said the application for the grant should be ready to submit by the end of January.

This will enable the city's application to be included in the first round of disbursements of the $330 million allotted for this year.

"Due to the national competition for these grants there are a lot of qualified projects that do not get funded," Robinson said.

When the application is being reviewed HUD will request additional information to aid in the decision making process and by the first of April the city should have an answer, he said.

"The answer could be a yes, no or maybe," Robinson said, "If maybe is the answer then the application would be held for the next round of disbursements this year."

ROBERT H. SIMMONS

Simmons elected Potentate of Joppa Shrine Temple

Robert H. Simmons of Ocean Springs has been elected potentate of Joppa Shrine Temple.

He was chosen during the annual election of officers conducted at temple headquarters on Commerce Street in Gulfport and becomes the ninth Potentate to head Joppa.

A native of Hattiesburg, Simmons earned his bachelor of science degree at the University of Southern Mississippi where he also took graduate courses.

An active member in the masonic fraternity, Simmons is past master of McLeod Lodge, Ocean Springs.

He is a Knight Templar in the York Rite, and a 32nd Degree Scottish Rite Mason with the rank of knight commander in the Court of Honor.

After completing 20 years of service in the U.S. Navy, Simmons became a civil service employee with the Air Force and is presently a training specialist with the Air Force Communications Command at Keesler AFB.

He is married to the former Ruth Ann Greene of Jena, La. They have been Ocean Springs residents since 1968 and have two children, Elaine Simmons of Baton Rouge, and Frederick Simmons of Biloxi.

Others elected to serve with the new Potentate during 1986 are John Topp, chief rabban, Gulfport; Roy Parker, assistant rabban, Pascagoula; Billy Sheffield, high priest, Gulfport; Al Rowell, oriental guide, Gulfport; Jesse Blackwell, treasurer, Wiggins; and Curtis Seymour, recorder, Ocean Springs.

Vernon Hennlein, Slidell, was appointed as chief aide to the Potentate.

The 2,000 plus members of Joppa Temple, most of whom reside in south Mississippi, are dedicated to their philanthropy of supporting Shriners Hospitals for Crippled and Burned Children.

"Any child who has not reached age 18, regardless of race, creed, color or relationship to a Shriner, is eligible for treatment...and there is no charge to patients, parents or any third party for anything received at a Shriners Hospital", Simmons said.

Local delegates to attend State Episcopal Council

Christ Episcopal Church of Bay St. Louis will send three delegates and two alternates to the Episcopal Diocese of Mississippi's 159th Annual Council at Biloxi Friday through Sunday.

Gary Gilmore, Guy Norton, and Frances Crawley have been appointed delegates by the local church and Linda Gilmore and Kathryn Norton have been appointed alternates.

All services and general business sessions will be held in the Grand Casino of the Biloxi Hilton, a separate building adjacent to the main hotel.

The theme of the 159th Annual Council will be "World Hunger."

The Rev. Wayne Schwab, coordinator, Evangelism Ministries for The Episcopal Church Center in New York City, will be the speaker at opening service of Evening Prayer Friday at 7 p.m.

The Right Rev. Duncan M. Gray Jr., bishop of The Episcopal Diocese of Mississippi, will address the council at the second session following the service of Morning Prayer Saturday morning.

The Annual Council will adjourn following the closing Eucharist Sunday at 11 a.m.

Of special interest will be a presentation at the Saturday luncheon by the Diocesan Outreach Committee entitled "Famine Fight: 1986 - Our Crusade Against Hunger." The luncheon is scheduled for 12:30 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom of the hotel.

The host parish for the 1986 Annual Council is St. Peter's by-the-Sea. The Rev. Joe G. Burnett is rector.

Three candidates qualify for Bay school election

Three Waveland residents have qualified for the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School Board election set for March 1.

Clarence Harris, John Mason and Linda Penrose all qualified in advance of the deadline Monday.

The election will be to fill the seat of Board President Walter Turcotte whose term expires in February.

Turcotte is one of the two representatives elected at large from the school district outside the Bay St. Louis city limits. This area includes Waveland and a portion of Hancock County.

Harris is employed at National Space Technology Laboratories and is treasurer for the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. He has four children attending school in the district.

Businessman John Mason is the owner of Mason's Exxon. He is on the board of directors for the Hancock County United Way and past president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Penrose is a legal secretary and currently has three children attending school in the district.

Maskers, marching groups, bands, and groups with a float all have many opportunities of participating in parades in the next few weeks.

The Krewe of Triton which rolls on Mardi Gras Day is seeking entries to follow their parade.

For information on participation in Triton call Randolph Bourgeois at 467-7792.

The Krewe of Real People which parades on Mardi Gras morning in Bay St. Louis is also seeking entries in their parade.

The Krewe of Nereids, which parades on Sunday, Feb. 2, is also seeking entries for the Krewe of Hancock which follows the ladies parade.

On Sunday, Feb. 9, the annual Pass Christian parade is scheduled, and it probably has more entries than any other Coastal event.

Diamondhead offers invitations to both water and land entries, as it has its two parades set for Saturday, Feb. 8.

And just think, after Mardi Gras the Waveland Civic Association will have its annual St. Patrick's Day Parade.

This is the time of year when some folks really enjoy themselves by participating in parades, instead of just being spectators.

I noted several oyster boats working the reef off St. Joseph Street on a drive down Beach Boulevard in Waveland this week.

I have eaten my share of oysters caught from that reef, and would like to have a nickle for every sack of oysters harvested over the years from that particular reef.

Oysters are a favorite seafood enjoyed by many local residents.

Just writing about them makes me want a good po-boy sandwich of them.

The rocket propulsion test complex at the National Space Technology Laboratories being designated as a National Historic Landmark by the Secretary of the Interior is good news for Hancock County.

We are fortunate in having many areas and buildings which have been designated as National Historic Landmarks in the county.

The propulsion test stands add to the continuing list.

Hancock County has played a very important roll in the space age exploration with the testing of the rockets.

Many of us can remember the early test firings when in Bay St. Louis the noise could be heard as well as vibrations.

The Visitors Center at NSTL is still drawing a lot of visitors, and is open seven days a week.

It is surprising as to how many local residents who have not visited the NSTL Visitors Center and it being located in their own back yard.

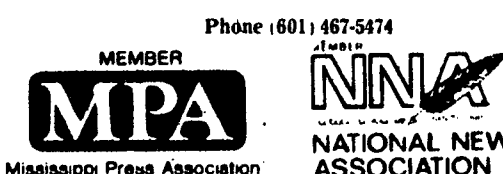

It is a very educational tour and we recommend it for everyone from school age up.

Today it is hard to find something which can be enjoyed by all family members with no entry fee.

SIGN DAMAGED—Hancock Supervisor Sam Pernicelli checks a 'curve' removed from post and thrown into woods on the Kila-Waveland Cut-off Road. The sign issued warnings of a dangerous curve in the road where several accidents have occurred over the years. This traffic indicator like many others have to be replaced because of pranksters, and it all ends up costing the tax paying public for the mischief. Missing signs can cause serious accidents and even the loss of life. This is a serious problem and we hope persons responsible would do a little thinking about what the mischief could cause. SELECT YOUR FAMILY DOCTOR BEFORE ILLNESS STRIKES

(Presented as a public service by the Mississippi State Medical Association and this newspaper.)
You need a family doctor before illness strikes. You may experience delays in treatment and you may face extra medical costs if you wait to get a physician "when he is needed."

The physician traditionally provides medical care to his or her own patients; unless you are among them, he may not be able to serve you at a moment's notice.

By having a physician before you are ill and by having periodic checkups, emergencies can often be anticipated and averted through preventive medical care.

Many people who have no family physician go to a hospital emergency room for medical care when they are ill, and thereby incur the higher medical costs associated with emergency room services.

How do you select a doctor for your family? The Mississippi State Medical Association offers several suggestions.

Start by calling your local medical society for the names of several physicians in your neighborhood or within convenient traveling distance. If there is no society office in your community, call your nearby hospital, ask friends for their recommendations, or check for your pharmacist's suggestions.

The Mississippi State Medical Association provides a referral service through which you may obtain the names of physicians in your area. And the American Medical Directory, published by the American Medical Association, is available in most public libraries and hospitals.

This volume will give the age, professional education, state of license, type of practice, teaching affiliation and medical organization membership for all physicians.

Keep in mind some questions as you look for a physician for your family. Is the prospective family doctor's office convenient for your family? What are the office hours?

Do you prefer an older or younger physician? Will the doctor make house calls?

Do any of your family members have physical handicaps or disabilities which might require the care of a specialist?

Once you select your physician, call for an appointment for a physical examination. This will give the two of you the opportunity to get acquainted before you become ill.

Does the doctor impress you favorably? Are you "comfortable" with him or her?

In discussing family health needs, keep in mind your budget. Ask the doctor about fees. He may not be able to give you an exact price for every kind of service, but he can tell you approximately what the basic fees are.

For your own good - and the health of your family - why wait until illness strikes to choose a doctor? Select a family physician now, so he or she can have advance knowledge of your family's medical problems and give you the kind of protective care you expect from both a good doctor and a good friend.

A MESSAGE TO PLATO

Plato said it:
"The punishment which the wise suffer who refuse to take part in government is to live under the government of worse men."

The good news is more Mississippians seem willing today to take part in their government, or at the least, to be heard on governmental issues. Consider these examples:

...More than 300 Mississippians are participating in a Governor-appointed constitutional commission, working to identify needed changes in the state's almost 100-year-old document.

...More than three dozen of the state's outstanding business and professional leaders have just completed a Private Sector Action Council study of state government, delivering a report and recommendations for improving the state of our government after several months study.

...Eighty-four percent of Mississippi's voters have expressed themselves in a recent statewide opinion poll in support of governor succession.

Some 25 business and professional organizations are speaking out in a unified voice in opposition to public employee strikes and collective bargaining.

...Mississippians are speaking clearly and firmly for full implementation of the Education Reform Act of 1982.

The better news is that the Legislature, the Governor, and other political bodies and office holders are responding to the people.

The Governor responded with a strong call for government reform and improvements in the structure of state government in his "State of the State" address to legislators, and legislators have responded with spirited action approving kindergarten funding, increased teachers' pay, and governor succession is on its way.

The message to Plato: Mississippians are taking part in government today, more than ever before.

HOUSEKEEPING

A Weekly Summary Of Mississippi House
Of Representatives

By Walter James Philips

JACKSON— Committee work, passage of a bill extending sovereign immunity and a hotly discussed college board proposal to close two state universities were among highlights in the House of Representatives during the second week of the 1988 legislative session.

Gov. Bill Allain unveiled his legislative recommendations in a speech to a joint session of the House and Senate. And a resolution was approved to invite Vice President George Bush to address the Legislature Feb. 5 during a visit to the state.

Floor action was limited compared to the opening week which saw speedy House passage of two major education appropriation bills and a proposed constitutional amendment on gubernatorial succession.

There was an increase in committee activity, however, as lawmakers began the painstaking job of digging through the massive stack of bills awaiting consideration.

A measure to extend the doctrine of sovereign immunity, protecting governmental units from damage suits, was approved 110-9 by the House. Under the bill, immunity would be retained for three more years instead of one additional year as approved earlier by the state Senate.

The House and Senate must resolve differences on the length of the extension before the measure can be sent to the governor.

The legislation follows a state Supreme Court decision in 1983 that sovereign immunity, a concept stemming from old English common law, would have to be removed by 1984 unless extended by the Legislature.

An extension of one year was approved in 1984 and another 12-month extension was voted last year. The latest House measure, recommended by the Judiciary "A" Committee, would leave sovereign immunity in effect until 1989.

Backers said this would allow extra time to study the complex issue and try to develop a satisfactory plan for paying legitimate damage judgments without bankrupting city, county and state governments.

The House also approved a number of other bills last week recommended by the Judiciary "A" Committee, including a measure which prosecuting attorneys believe will help combat criminal activities. The bill would allow prosecutors to seek multiple count indictments against a person accused of more than one crime if the offenses are connected or part of a common scheme.

The college board recommendation to close Mississippi University for Women and Mississippi Valley State University was among the hottest topics around the Capitol in the past week.

The board also recommended closing the Ole Miss School of Dentistry, the College of Veterinary Medicine at Mississippi State, and the off-campus degree granting programs operated by Ole Miss, Mississippi State and Southern Mississippi.

Legislative reaction to the proposal was mixed. Some lawmakers have indicated they agree with some or all of the recommendations, while others oppose the proposals. Still others want additional information before making a final decision.

In other developments, the House Transportation Committee voted to recommend a mandatory seat belt law that would be enforced by Highway Patrol officers. The bill was awaiting consideration this week by the full House.

A hearing was planned by the County Affairs Committee this week on a bill to do away with statewide Sunday "blue laws" and allow local governments deal as they see fit with the issue of Sunday sales. The measure was approved last week by the Municipalities Committee.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON— Chief Justice Neville Patterson, whose leadership of the State Supreme Court over the last decade has been marked by some of the most significant rulings in state legal history, will not run for reelection this year.

But Patterson, who turns 70 next month, has decided to remain on the bench until the end of his present term in January, 1988. Under Mississippi's oddly timed supreme court elections, judges stand for election more than a year before the end of their term.

Consequently, Patterson's decision will throw open his Southern District seat on the bench in the June Democratic or GOP primaries, for which candidates must qualify in April.

Two relatively young, moderate South Mississippi circuit court judges are among the early prospective candidates for the court seat. They are Circuit Judge Mike Eubanks of Lumberton and Circuit Judge James Thomas of Biloxi.

Patterson's departure from the court in January 1988 will elevate Associate Justice Harry Walker to chief justice, an event that will be keenly watched in judicial circles because of its possible change in the philosophical balance of the court.

The court under Patterson is regarded as having a 5 to 4 edge of moderate-liberal justices, led by the rural populist influence of the chief justice.

Walker is regarded as the most conservative of the nine judges on the bench, and the strongest hardliner on punishment of persons convicted of criminal offenses.

The only former member of the Legislature serving on the Supreme Court, Walker apparently did not share the views of Patterson in the confrontation of the court with state lawmakers four years ago over which had the power to set civil rules of practice and procedure.

Patterson won widespread respect among the state's legal profession when he held the line in a face-off with the Legislature over the civil rules and exercised the power of the court to establish the rules. A solid majority of the court later backed up Patterson's stance.

Last year, the Patterson-led court made another milestone decision to adopt rules of evidence for the courts of the state, without bothering about what the Legislature might say.

Patterson's most monumental personal triumph was the historic 1983 decision on separation of powers, when he wrote the unanimous opinion of the court ordering 36 state legislators removed from executive boards and commissions.

The landmark decision had so angered some of the most powerful lawmakers that they retaliated against the court in 1984 by cutting the amount of expense funds appropriated to the court. However, those cuts were restored last year by the Legislature.

Another major chore that the Legislature failed to do last year - reapportion the state's chancery and circuit court districts pursuant to a 1982 constitutional amendment - has now fallen into the laps of the Supreme Court.

But because of the lack of time before primary elections in June for the chancery and circuit court seats, with qualifying deadlines in April, the court may not have time to complete the redistricting.

The Patterson court had made another landmark ruling in 1981 when it mandated the statewide equalization of property taxes under Section 112 in the state constitution which for many years had been ignored. That ruling is still causing reverberations in the Legislature as lawmakers try to grapple with its implications.

A ruling by the Patterson court in the case involving Sen. Nap Cassibry of Gulfport in 1981 for violation of the conflict of interest provision in the state Constitution has also plowed new ground in the area of ethics in state government.

While Patterson is not recognized as a legal scholar, his colleagues admire his humanistic progressiveness and his common touch, marked by firm gentleness.

Some legal authorities believe Patterson will be looked upon for years as a key force in revolutionizing the practice of law and court process in the state.

"I believe he is one of the most important men of this century in Mississippi," said one of his colleagues.

Sometimes unlikely heroes come along, and Neville Patterson seems to be one of them.

Senior job registry available in Hancock

By EDGAR H. PEREZ

The Seniors Job Registry in Hancock County provides free employment agency services to both employers and employees.

The registry is maintained in the Russell Youth Court Building, 124 Court St., Bay St. Louis and is administered by Jim Widmark of Bay St. Louis.

The service is provided by the National Council of Senior Citizens Senior Aides Program and funded by the U.S. Department of Labor through South Mississippi Planning and Development District.

"If you are 55-years-old or older and are interested in part-time or full-time employment, visit our office and fill out an application," Widmark urges.

"On the other hand, if you have a vacancy in your organization or a repair or paint job at home you may register with us to get your job done—we can find a suitable person to fill your need," he added.

"Senior citizens have a vast amount of knowledge and years of experience to offer," Widmark stated.

"They need to work to supplement their low fixed incomes and will accept positions by the hour, day, week or month working with maximum efficiency and minimum absenteeism."

"If you need a clerk-typist, bookkeeper, sitter, cook, carpenter, painter, maid, nurses aide, or other qualified person, call the Seniors Job Registry at 467-8707," Widmark added.

Employees, however, must come to the office to apply, he noted. Applications will not be accepted by telephone or distributed by a third party.

The registry office, 126 Court St., is open from 8 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday.

depicting the faces of Mardi Gras.

As the dancers exited, the officers appeared on stage extending an official welcome to "It's Mardi Gras Time."

As the curtain opened, a sea of fog engulfed a purple, green, and gold realm of the captain.

The captain entered on a red carpet wearing a gown of cracked ice, silver and green. Her collar was made of Austrian rhinestones and sequins in a profusion of green coque.

The crowd was then presented the colorful sights, sounds, and tastes of New Orleans as the maids of the Royal Court arrived.

The First Maid portrayed "Famous Streets of the Vieux Carre."

The Second Maid depicted the "Clowns, Animals and Martians," all part of the comedy and tragedy of Mardi Gras masks.

The Third Maid represented a toast to the King and Queen with "Royal Glasses and Champagne."

The Fourth Maid represented the traditional "Mardi Gras Beads" and their many colors and erotic designs.

The Fifth Maid depicted "Day at the Fair Grounds," a tradition of New Orleans Mardi Gras lovers.

The Sixth Maid entered to the beat of a drum and blair of a horn proclaiming "Music" at Mardi Gras time.

Queen Doris XX personifying the "Spirit of Mardi Gras" and the "Queen of the Ball" was dressed in a gown of tissue gold lame heavily encrusted in appliques of Austrian rhinestones and pearls.

Her train was made of purple, green, and gold and was applique with comedy and tragedy masks of gold and trimmed with white fur.

Trainbearers to her majesty were Miss Natica L. Chapman, Master Herbert T. Dubuisson, Master Jared W. Freeman, and Master Ryan J. LaFontaine.

The Dukes of Nereids, Mr. Donald V. Freeman, Mr. John R. Adams, Mr. E. Burton Kemp III, Mr. Philip A. Ryan Jr., Mr. Salvatore Pagano and Mr. John L. Boos Jr. were then summoned to their lovely maids, so that together, the Court might await the regal arrival of King Nereus XX, Mr. Harold Hitt.

He was dressed in tissue gold lame heavily encrusted with appliques of Austrian rhinestones.

His train of purple, green, and gold was applique with comedy and tragedy masks of gold and trimmed in white fur.

After honored guests were presented to the Throne, the Royal Court began their Grand March "Amid Magical Memories of Mardi Gras."

The Royal Court was then entertained by "The Hookers on Bourbon Street."

Then portraying the day of Mardi Gras came "The Parade" where the floats of Nereids came through the arena with the krewe throwing beads to the very excited crowd.

Then came the Finale where the krewe portrayed the second line with green, yellow, and purple umbrellas.

Others participating included Norris Fitzmorris, narrator; Carter Church, court designs; Betty Starr, head piece execution; Jim Maxwell, orchestration; Ed Scanlan and W. B. Spangenburg, scenery; and Kevin Champagne, choreographer.

Bay Council okays zoning, crowd control measures

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
The Bay St. Louis City Council this week ruled on controversial zoning issues and passed an ordinance for traffic and crowd control during parades.

Resolving a zoning question in the annexed area near Bismark and Turner streets, the council passed a compromise resolution.

Property owner Paul Vegas had requested a "zoning correction" of land fronting on US-90 and extending back to Bismark Street.

Vegas told the council last week in a hearing that the area which was currently zoned residential should be zoned commercial.

Several area residents voiced their protests of the change in the hearing, claiming the commercial zoning of the property would depreciate the value the homeowners property.

The resolution, split the difference, zoning commercial approximately half the area which was requested and leaving the other property which is currently unoccupied as a buffer between the commercial and the residential areas.

The commercial zoning which extends to Ninth Street doubles the buffer zone recommended by the Planning and Zoning Commission.

The resolution was passed 4-1 with Councilman Lisa Coward voting against the zoning.

The council unanimously approved resolutions granting a request by Jerry Heitzman for a zoning change on Third Street of multi-family residential to single-family residen-tal and allowing a mini-subdivision near Beyer Drive requested by Ronald Artigues.

An ordinance was also approved dealing with temporary barricades and signs. The ordinance allows the city or a contractor to place barricades when necessary for temporary traffic control, to reroute traffic from areas made hazardous by construction activities, foul weather, physical deterioration of public works or accidents and to allow for crowd control during parades and public events.

The ordinance also makes it unlawful to cross a barricade or proceed contrary to the direction on signs rerouting traffic, unless specifically authorized or directed by a police officer or the responsible representative of the Public Works Department.

The council also approved the appointment of John Chevis as Bay St. Louis Municipal Court judge. Chevis replaces former Judge Joseph Benvenuti.

Also during the meeting the council accepted bids for property cleanups on Washington, Ruella, St. George and Ninth streets and Dunbar Avenue. The bid prices ranged from $187 to $657 and cleanup is expected to be completed within two weeks.

NEW SCHOOL CROSSING—Bay St. Louis Police Chief Ray Murphy, left, and Bay Junior High Principal W. J. Cameron, right, inspect the painting of new school crossing lines on Ulman Avenue near the school. Hancock County Jail Trustee Steve Niolet painted the lines. Murphy said in addition to these lines, school speed limit signs will soon be placed in the middle of the street during school hours. These measures are necessary to provide a safe crossing for students, he added. Murphy also issued a stern warning to speeders in school zones and said if drivers do not slow down speed bumps may be put on the street. (Staff photo by Brenda Heathcock)

Chicken cooking contest

Chicken popular with trendsetters

By Ann O. Rushing
Marketing Specialist
Cooperative Extension Service

Two groups—the working woman and young career couples known as "yuppies"—have emerged as today's trendsetters in food as well as other consumer products.

And their influence has contributed to the increasing importance of chicken in the diet, according to the National Broiler Council.

Chicken cookers who want to show off their favorite recipe, should plan to enter the Mississippi Chicken Cooking Contest. The deadline is Jan. 31. Entry blanks are available from county Extension offices or by calling the marketing office at 982-6216 in Jackson.

The working woman especially has helped to raise the national consciousness of eating for good health. While she is not always in the home at mealtime, she demonstrates concern and influence over the food served to children whom she has left in the charge of others. When she cooks herself, she seeks high quality, easily-prepared foods.

Career couples, committed to living the "good life," believe that eating well and being healthy go hand-in-hand. They are young, affluent, sophisticated and willing to experiment. Extremely image-conscious, they set high standards of excellence and for them the presentation of food is almost as important as taste.

Both groups see chicken as a good protein source, low in calories and cholesterol. While fried chicken is still America's favorite, the collective effects of both health and lifestyle influences have resulted in new trends in cooking chicken.

Broiled chicken is becoming increasingly popular. Poaching and baking, often without the skin, meet demands for decreased calorie count. Light sauces made from pureed marinades and wine reductions give chicken a gourmet touch.

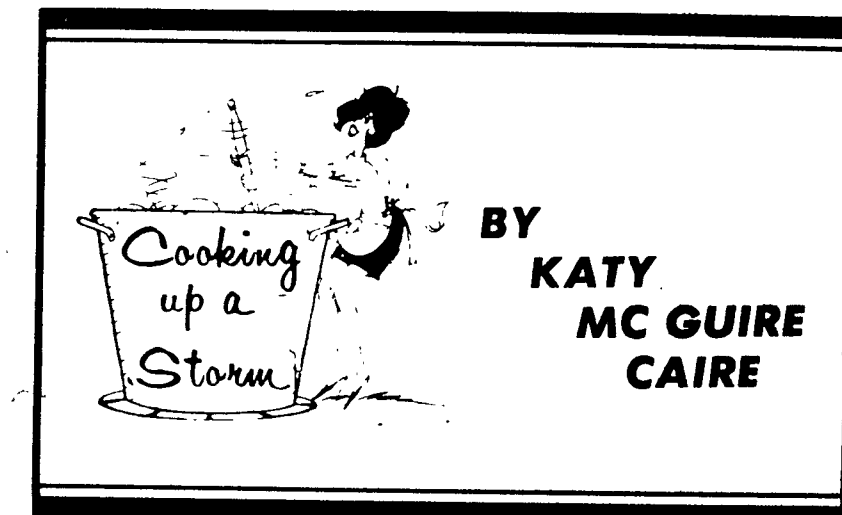

But, for me, the one which evokes the most memories, both sentimental and sensory or whatever, is Mother's, downtown on Poydras Street - though, what do I mean, memories? It's still among my favorites - in fact, I had a Ferdi Special just a few days ago!

(A Ferdi is named for a man who liked to pile ham and roast beef together on his French bread poor-boy - it's good!)

Mother's opened in 1938, when I was a just-out-of-college reporter on the old New Orleans Item (later merged into the States-Item) and just-married that summer to a young reporter on the New Orleans States (later merged into the States-Item and now the Times/Picayune-States-Item. Times change, don't they? As I was trying to be a good cook on a rather limited (oh, was it limited) budget, I was delighted to discover Mother's.

Not only could we get delicious ham poorboys, at lunchtime - when we got a lunchtime, what with chasing news stories - I could also buy what was called "ham trimmings" and a ham bone whenever I wanted - and that, boys and girls, is where and when I started my reputation as a jambalaya cook par excellence! How else could I possibly have the rest of the bright-but-also-broke gang over for supper? Back to Alec and his book - I hope that he'll write a sequel - and I have a few suggestions of places!

(Copyright, 1986, Katharine D.M. Caire)

One of the most pleasant aspects of growing up in New Orleans was, for me, the exposure at a relatively early age, to dining out on a regular basis with my parents and siblings at small (and some not so small) neighborhood restaurants in the Crescent City.

Though my parents often dined at the more famous establishments in the city, when we ate out as a family, we went usually to one or another of the neighborhood places - after all, there were four lively youngsters to keep in line while awaiting the serving of the food!

One learns early in that city of food lovers and food purveyors to appreciate the myriad methods of bringing the oysters, shrimp and crabs and such to their succulent best, and to take such excursions as a matter of course.

Through the years I've kept up a love affair of the taste buds with some of these places, taking my sons in turn, and they in their turn taking their sons (we're rather short on gals in this family - two sons, six grandsons!) to some of the same old places - and it's all just as delicious as I remember! And, of course, we take in the newer ones as well, starting new traditions.

Memories - and memorable meals are made of this! And that's just one of the reasons I've been having such a fine time, as well as a well fed time, reading and cooking my way through that delightful book of Alec Gifford's, which my eldest grandsons, Bill and Brian McGuire, gave recently to their "cookaholic" Gran.

It's called "Alec Gifford Takes You to 22 New Orleans Restaurants that the locals would like to keep for themselves." (It's available from area bookstores, and if you can't find it, you can always find Alec at WDSU-TV in New Orleans and ask for it, or write. It costs just $2.95 and it's truly a mammoth treasure of restaurants and recipes in a small package)

This book's 44 pages take you on a trip to some of the best places to eat in old New Orleans (and some of the least expensive) and some of the eateries which the tourists never find - is it because we keep the secret and don't tell 'em? asks Alec.

There's a restaurant and a dish for just about every taste - the red snapper at the before-the-turn-of-the-century Delmonico's on the avenue, St. Charles, what else, for Heaven's sake? and it's still going strong - to the newest of the new, to Popeye's chicken king Al Copeland's Cajun restaurant, Copeland's on Veteran's Highway - with stops for all tastes in between, such as the good-for-the-soul food at Chez Helene and Dooky Chase, the beignets at the Cafe Du Monde, and so on.

Farm bill questions linger, fundamental changes noted

Questions about the farm bill passed by Congress in late 1985 arose before the ink was dry but the bill does represent a fundamental change from previous legislation.

The bill, officially the Food Security Act of 1985, is a move toward a more market-oriented agriculture, said Dr. Bob Williams, head of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service Economics Department.

While many specifics of the five-year bill are yet to be ironed out, the bill emphasizes more market-oriented programs and less reliance on government support.

In conjunction with unanswered questions about the 1985 bill, the Extension Service is hosting a series of farm bill meetings in late January, when more specific information about the legislation is expected to be available.

The dates and locations of the meetings are: Jan. 20, Tupelo, Best Western Trace Inn, 9:30 a.m. to noon; Jan. 21-22, Cleveland, Bolivar County Expo Center, 12:15 p.m. to 1:15 p.m. both days; Jan. 23, Laurel, Dixie Electric Power Association Building, 9:30 a.m. to noon; Jan. 24, Jackson, Hinds County Extension Office, 9:30 a.m. to noon; and Jan. 24, Summit, Southwest Mississippi Junior College, 10:30 a.m. to noon.

Extension crop specialists and economists will conduct each meeting and speak about various provisions of the farm bill as they impact on Mississippi farmers.

Williams said as in previous farm bills, the government will continue an active role as an income provider to farmers. But that role will be reduced to some degree beginning in 1986.

"Farmers will continue to have income protection against low prices, but not as much protection because crop loan rates will be generally lower for the next five years," Williams said.

Williams said the immediate impact of the bill on Mississippi farmers will probably be negative, partly because of reduced loan rates and other factors. Loan rates, in effect, set a floor price for farm commodities and provide income protection for farmers.

"Loan rates for crops will drop, some substantially, and target prices will be frozen in 1986 and 1987 for some crops," Williams said. "Target prices will generally be reduced in 1988 through 1990."

In the long run, the legislation should prove positive for farmers, although results may not be evident for two to three years, Williams said.

A key part of the bill for Mississippi producers is a conservation reserve program, which encourages farmers to take erodible cropland out of production.

"In the non-Delta, we will likely have some substantial quantities of land taken out of production that really shouldn't be in row crop production," Williams said.

Nationwide, 45 million acres of cropland subject to erosion are targeted to be taken out of production by 1990, a move designed to reduce crop production and improve crop prices as well as for conservation purposes.

"Sodbuster" provisions contained in the bill also penalize farmers for putting new land subject to erosion into production by removing their eligibility for price supports and other government assistance.

Williams said lower loan rates and export promotion incentives should make U.S. farmers more competitive in world markets, while a new marketing loan concept will be available to help assure farmers of receiving loan rate prices regardless of market prices.

The bill also calls for lower support prices for milk producers over the next five years and government herd buy-outs to reduce milk production. Williams said such herd liquidations could have at least some negative impact on cattle markets.

STRESS TESTING EQUIPMENT has been added to the Respiratory Therapy Department at Hancock General Hospital. This equipment provides physicians with detailed information to diagnose and treat various cardiac disorders by measuring, through stressful activity, the electrical impulses produced by the heart. Pete Hansen, left, HGH employee, is tested by Nona Nordin, director of the department.

CONCERNED CITIZENS

Sherman Meadows of Gulfport, Social Security office manager, will address Hancock County Concerned Citizens Organization, 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 23, St. Rose Parish Cafeteria, 301 Necaise Ave., Bay St. Louis. Question and answer session will follow his presentation.

Hush-hush annexation moves tend to irritate electorate

By Charlie Mitchell
Department of Journalism
University of Mississippi

(The following article is the result of a grant from the MS Committee for the Humanities to the MS Press Association. The opinions are those of the author and not of either organization.)

Chancellor Nate Adams recently pitched from court the City of Vicksburg's annexation petition because it failed a number of preliminary tests.

Among the shortcomings, the chancellor said, was that the metes didn't meet and the bounds didn't bound, facts dutifully pointed out by those who opposed the river city's move to more than double its square mileage.

Three and a half years ago, in May 1982, Vicksburg's long-awaited master plan for annexation, prepared by hired consultants during many, many months and with more than one extension, was finally ready.

The planners, Joe Lustig and Michael Bridge were to convene at comfortable Mousour's Restaurant for a luncheon before outlining the results of their comprehensive studies to the lay people who make up Vicksburg's planning commission.

The game plan was for the commissioners, who have no power to act on their own, to hear an explanation of the master plan, with its demographics, growth projections and whatever.

After viewing and questioning the data presented, the commissioners were to make suggestions concerning additions or deletions and to advise City Hall on how or whether to proceed.

Reporters representing the Vicksburg Evening Post showed up to report the contents of the plan. It was expected that a period of public comment and reaction to the figures and findings of the planners would follow.

This reaction, along with the advice of the commissioners, was also expected to help guide the city's elected officials in acting in the best interests of all.

But it wasn't to be. Before the meeting started, the commission members, by a one vote margin, opted to close their session with the master planners. When the newspaper challenged the appropriateness and legality of that move, the city's elected officials took up the fight.

They lost before Chancellor Willard McIlwain, who preceded Adams in office. The city was "using the law to circumvent the law," McIlwain said.

The city then used the money of the same taxpayers who were being denied knowledge of the contents of the plan they bought to appear to the state Supreme Court. There, they won.

The justices said unanimously that the commission meeting, although no attorneys were present, was a "strategy session with respect to prospective litigation" and as such could be closed as an exception to the state's open meetings law.

Regardless of the wisdom of that decision and the legalities involved, there are more practical aspects - lessons to be learned - from the city's fervor to keep the plan under wraps.

Vicksburg's official position at the time, voiced by the mayor, the city planner and attorneys, was that no need existed for public input because the master planners were the best in their fields and largely incapable of error.

Second, they argued that public knowledge of the plan was bound to generate opposition, and the city's case would suffer if the "other side" knew too much about what was going on.

Well, it's not nice to kick a city government when it's down. And Vicksburg may yet emerge the victor in the annexation case or - by some miracle - the competing local governments there may settle their differences amicably and out of court.

But at least one might wonder if the city had allowed anyone to look at its plan earlier, the gaps would have been picked up earlier and corrected before the city was sent back by Adams last August.

Annexation is, in the words of former Vicksburg Evening Post Editor and Publisher Louis P. Cashman Jr., a "hot" topic. And it doesn't take a genius to realize that what city hall was really trying to avoid these three and a half years ago was those crabby, annoying, griping phone calls, letters and visits officials get when members of the electorate sense that something is going on that they don't like.

The city attorneys couldn't have really believed they'd be jeopardizing the petition by revealing details of the plans to their prospective opponents.

We don't have trial by ambush in this country any more and, as is obvious by the way things have turned out, the opposition was granted plenty of time to find the holes in the city's map.

Isn't it possible, that with some public input, although extremely bothersome to those in power, Vicksburg's officials could have avoided last Friday's fiasco.

They may yet win. But isn't it possible, even likely, that by choosing to exclude the public from the process, they have hurt their own case?

If so, and the logic appears sound, maybe this should serve as an example to those in office ostensibly to serve the public, both in Vicksburg and elsewhere.

A lot of phone calls, anger, dispute and other "bothersome" things may result if you really allow the public to know what you're doing. But if you're willing to put up with the noise, as you should be, you may accomplish your ultimate goals faster.

Lady Pirates drop second game to Stone

Tuesday, Jan. 21, the Lady Pirates played the undefeated and state ranked Stone County Tomkittens.

After suffering their worst defeat of the season in mid-December to Stone County by a 57-41 margin, the team went into the contest with a ball controlled, spread offensive attack, aimed at slowing down the Tomkittens.

The Lady Pirates executed the strategy perfectly in the first quarter leading by a score of 8-5. But Stone County scored eight points of their own in the second quarter, pressing the Lady Pirates and forcing them into many turnovers to lead 13-8 at halftime.

The Lady Pirates regained control of the game in the third quarter and narrowed Stone's lead to 17-13. After closing the gap to three points, Pass Christian suffered some costly turnovers again and Stone County made seven out of eight foul shots in the fourth quarter, winning the game 28-18.

Kim Joseph scored 11 points to lead the team.

"Hope Bonney, Angel Moran, and Angle Dubuisson did an outstanding job in ball handling throughout the game," said Coach Ron Kline.

"Defensively, the team played hard and forced Stone County into many mistakes," he added.

The Lady Pirates' record slipped to 7-5 overall and 5-3 in district play. Their next game is Friday, Jan. 24, at East Central.

Bay beats St. Martin in double overtime

The Bay St. Louis Junior High Ninth Grade Tigers defeated St. Martin 76-68 in double overtime last week while the Bay girls won 46 to 6.

In the girls game, Nichole Elzy led the scoring with 19 points and DeeDee McGowan was second with 15 points, Coach Pat Harris said.

The boys team, coming back from a defeat by St. Stanislaus, went into double overtime after the fourth quarter ended with a 64-64 tie.

"It was a good game," Bay Coach Gary Blaize said. "It was probably our most exciting game of the year."

Blaize said Micah Necaise fought off St. Martin defenders to hit a 20-foot shot at the buzzer ending the first overtime period to put the game into double overtime.

Scoring leaders for the game were Micah Necaise with 23 points, Cedric Walker with 18 points, Bennie Tillman with 13 points and Freddie Necaise with 12 points.

"One of the things that really made it good was after Bennie and Freddie both fouled out in fourth, we brought in some of our younger players, Alexander Oliva and Will Seymour, and they did a good job," Blaize commented.

"We also had four people scoring in double figures and were able to effectively use our balanced attack," he added.

Carey College slates 5-K run

Phi Alpha Sigma Fraternity of William Carey College will hold a 5-K Run and One-Mile Fun Run Saturday, Feb. 15, at 8:30 a.m., as part of the college's Homecoming festivities. The run is sponsored by Main Street Baptist Church of Hattiesburg.

Participants who wish to pre-register may do so through Feb. 14 for a $6 fee. Registration fee on race day is $7 and may be paid between 7 a.m. and 8 a.m.

Entry forms may be obtained in the Student Development Office of William Carey College, phone (801) 582-6214, or by writing Joel Ray Jr., Phi Alpha Sigma Fraternity, William Carey College, Hattiesburg, Miss., 39401. Registration fee is non-refundable.

Conservation has established a statewide non-toxic (steel) shot zone for waterfowl hunting beginning in the 87-88 season.

This action came in response to recent Federal regulations designed to alleviate the estimated loss of two million waterfowl to lead poisoning. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will begin to implement steel shot regulations according to county harvest estimates.

High kill counties would be converted to steel shot in 1987 and all counties would be affected by 1991. The phase-in plan would create a situation where non-toxic counties would be scattered among lead shot counties.

This would create strife and confusion among hunters and hinder shot-shell manufacturers and retailers from making non-toxic shot available to sportsmen in sufficient quantity and at a reasonable price.

The decision to convert to non-toxic shot statewide is the only means to comply with Federal regulations and avoid high shot shell prices and five years of confusing non-toxic zoning regulations.

Bird hunter trial awards listed

The South Mississippi Bird Hunters Association, a member of the Deep South Walking Shooting Dog Circuit with eight member clubs in south Mississippi and Louisiana, held its annual Spring Trial Jan. 11 and 12 at DeSoto National Forest, Saucier.

Sixteen trials a year excluding championship trials are conducted.

The judges were Jerry Johnson of Purvis, member of the Rocky Branch Club and veteran field trialer; and Bill Rivenbark of Pass Christian, a charter member of the SMBHA approximately a decade ago and is the owner and handler of Elhew Atlanta, a pointer female.

She is the only dog that has ever retired the SMBHA revolving trophy. In order to accomplish this, a dog must win first place in the shooting dog stakes three times.

Capturing first place in the shooting dog stakes was Trebor's Elhew Huck, a pointer male owned and handled by Robert Riendeau of Ocean Springs.

Taking second was Choice's Sassy Bee, a pointer female owned and handled by Steve Boyette of Loranger, La.

Placing third was Rosemond Pass Partout, also a pointer male owned and handled by Barbara Major of Sumrall.

Presentation of these awards was by 'Papa' Walker.

Derby stakes awards were presented by Dave Faulk, a board member, which went as follows: Colonel Clyde, a pointer male owned and handled by Anthony Stephens of Gulfport, earned first place while Terry's Pocono Josh, a pointer male owned and handled by Omer Morris of Ponchatoula, La., won second.

Third place went to Ace's Sweet Arrival, a pointer female owned and handled by Tom Rice of Pearlinton.

In the puppy stakes Missi River Lynn, a pointer female owned and handled by Henry Truxillo of Donaldsonville, La., captured first place.

O'Jay, a pointer male owned and handled by Dave Faulk of Biloxi took second place.

Belle, a pointer female owned and handled by J. S. Jackson of Poplarville, placed third.

Presenting the puppy awards was David Waldrop, president.

All winners at our trials receive a trophy and a hat pin as well as the shooting dog stakes, the revolving trophy.

The wins are recognized and sanctioned by the Amateur Field Trial Clubs of America and the National Bird Hunters of America.

Association membership is open. Anyone interested in birds, hunting, the outdoors, or just fellowship—both men and women—may call any of the following numbers for further information: 832-5584, 928-3165, 255-1669, 389-4874.

Pirates advance to first in district

The Pass Christian Pirates behind the 32 point effort of Joel Hatcher and 12 assists from John Dedeaux took over first place in the Deep South Conference with a 66-63 win over Stone County.

The Pirates trailing by eight at halftime out-scored the Tomcats 25-14 in the third quarter and 12-10 in the fourth to claim their 14th win of the season.

"This is a great win for us. We needed to win a game like this against a quality team like Stone," Coach Ken Hudson said.

"I'm hoping that the team will gain some pride from this win. They have played real hard all year and this was a special win," he added.

"I'm really proud of the way they have hung together," Hudson said.

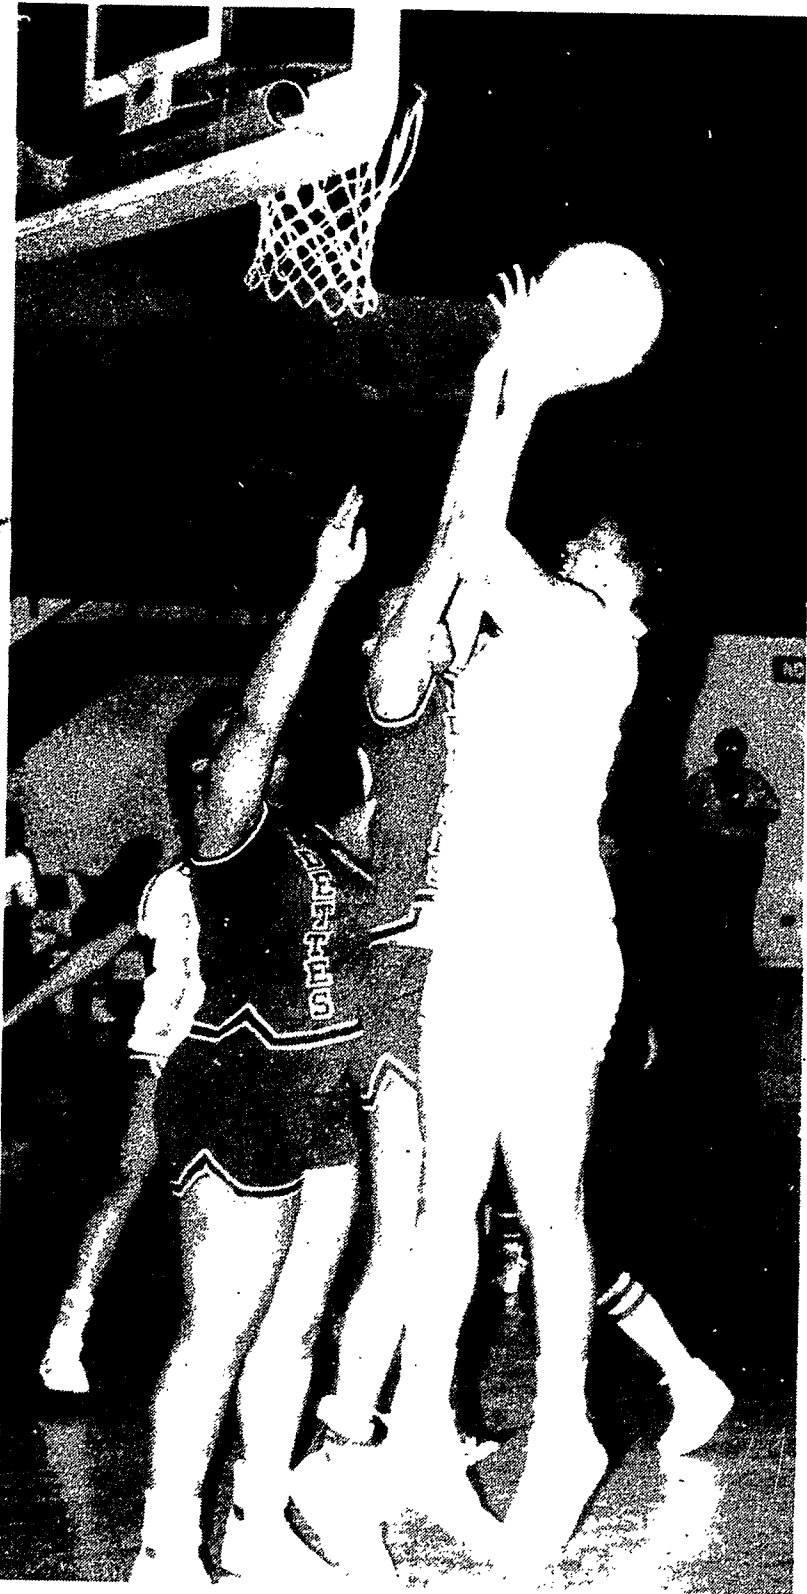

Isles lady golf winners announced

Winners in Pass Christian Isles Ladies Golf Association Low Gross Play this week include Yummy Van Hyning, first flight; Marian Tibergien, second flight; Ceil Lewis, third flight; Dolores Bullit, fourth flight; and Peggy Benandi, low putts.

St. Ann-St. John Carnival Ball slated Saturday

St. Ann - St. John Carnival Association will present its 12th annual Bal Masque Saturday at the American Legion Post 77 Hall on Coleman Avenue, Waveland, from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Continuing a tradition started 12 years ago, the selection of king and queen remains a closely guarded secret until the night of the ball when they are presented as rulers of Mardi Gras mythical domains.

Membership of the group, which was organized in 1974 as a parish fund raising project, includes local as well as summer residents, relatives and friends whose purpose it is to stage a once-a-year ball, with enthusiasm that renews itself year after year.

Membership is unlimited. St. Ann - St. John's contribution to the Gulf Coast's observance of Mardi Gras season also enhances the civic and cultural life of the parish.

Everyone is encouraged to come costumed and masked. Prizes will be awarded in various categories.

Anyone planning to attend should get tickets in advance as soon as possible.

None may be sold at the door. Tickets may be obtained from the "Unique Shop" on US-90, Waveland or by calling Rita or Jim Davis, 467-2138 or from any organization member.

Donation is $8 per person. BYOL. Music will be provided by "St. Charles Streetcar Band."

English muffins freeze well but separate the halves before freezing for easier toasting.

Planet Earth episode No. 2

"The Blue Planet" dives into Earth's ocean secrets

The oceans that cover more than two-thirds of our planet are Earth's last great unexplored frontier. But now scientists are unlocking the secrets of the oceans, and making discoveries that are beautiful, useful—and amazing.

"The Blue Planet," second program in the "Planet Earth" series, follows the work of those scientists in a wide-ranging anthology of contemporary oceanography.

It is scheduled to air at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 29 on public television—METV ch. 19, Biloxi.

The program travels in the space shuttle (in the first oceanographic report from space—produced exclusively for the series with help from NASA), in deep-sea submarines, on a yacht, and even on a tuna fishing boat to present the newest work of the scientists of the sea. Some examples:

* A river in the sea. Sailors have long called the Gulf Stream "a river in the sea," but only recently have scientists learned how complex the Gulf Stream is.

Through satellite and space shuttle images, the Stream is seen to be unstable and moody, constantly changing course, doubling back on itself, and spawning countless giant whirlpool-like eddies.

Viewers of "The Blue Planet" sail in a New England-to-Bermuda yacht race, with information about Gulf Stream activities provided to the captains by NOAA—the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration.

Some captains choose to try to "ride" the Gulf Stream, while others opt to avoid it.

(The winner may come as a surprise.)

* Three new species on each dive. "The Blue Planet" travels to the depths of the middle ocean in the Johnson Sea Link, a submersible.

As powerful lights pierce the blackness, viewers see startling sea creatures swim past, unperturbed.

Richard Harrison of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute on Cape Cod, who pilots the submersible, discovers an average of three new species on each dive he makes.

* Salad plate clams, tulip worms. Scientists once thought the ocean floor was a flat and muddy plain—but now they know it to be ragged and rugged, full of mountains, valleys, and plateaus.

Viewers are invited along on a computerized "flyover" of part of the ocean floor, and then on an actual journey in the Navy's Sea Cliff submersible.

The Sea Cliff withstands incredible pressures to descend to the ocean floor. Two miles down, scientists have discovered "vents"—cracked spots in the ocean floor where steam from the Earth's interior spews forth. The vents are oases of eerie lifeforms—clams as big as salad plates, worms that look like tulips.

* Birth of a new branch of science? In the winter of 1982-83, an unusual series of weather catastrophes occurred around the world; the events baffled meteorologists.

At the same time, one part of the Pacific Ocean heated up, while another part cooled down; that puzzled oceanographers.

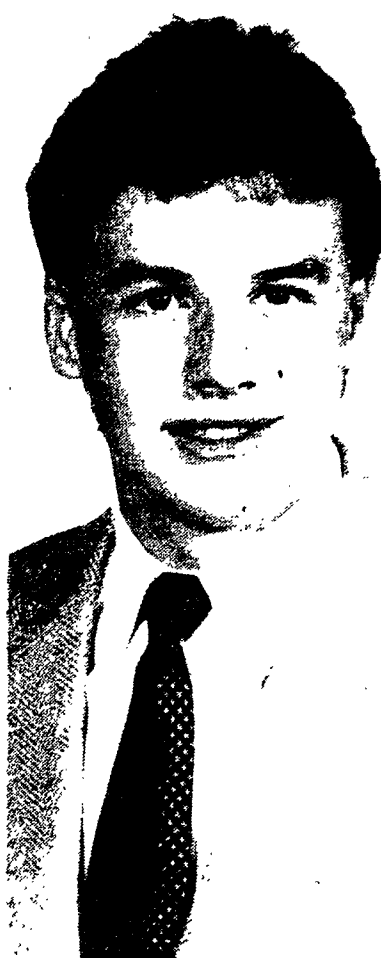

Now, using the multidisciplinary approach that characterizes so much of today's science, an international group of scientists has launched a 10-year project to determine the exact relationship between the atmosphere and the tropical ocean.

Is one the master and the other the slave? Are they two halves of a whole? The study may mark the birth of a new branch of science.

Oceanography has taken giant steps in the past few years—but those steps are clearly only the beginning of a long and fascinating journey.

The "Planet Earth" series is made possible through major funding by The Annenberg/CPB Project with corporate funding by IBM, and is produced by WQED/Pittsburgh in association with the National Academy of Sciences. Richard Kiley narrates.

JODY COMPRETTA, a senior at St. Stanislaus High School, won first place in the school in the 39th annual Voice of Democracy competition sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Ladies Auxiliary. The Voice of Democracy competition is a broadcast scriptwriting scholarship program. Compretta was honored recently at the local VFW home and a plaque was awarded to St. Stanislaus. Compretta is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J.P. Compretta of Bay St. Louis.

4-H News

By Daney Jackson
Hancock County 4-H Youth Agent

By Daney Jackson
Hancock County
4-H Youth Agent

This is the fourth in a series of articles about 4-H, the 4-H program and how you can get involved in this youth education program.

4-H has developed various methods, techniques, procedures, and organizational structures that have helped reach the goals of 4-H. The following will elaborate on each 4-H Club.

The 4-H Club is the basic method of 4-H. Through it, all or nearly all, of the objectives of 4-H can be achieved. The 4-H club is a group of boys and girls aged 8 through 18 who meet regularly throughout most or all of the year.

The 4-H Club is under the leadership of a volunteer 4-H Club Advisor. The members are each enrolled in one or more 4-H projects, they elect their own officers, and plan their own programs.

Special Interest Groups
A special interest group is a group of boys and girls who meet outside the school to study one subject.

Typically, a special interest group is aimed primarily at boys and girls who are not 4-H Club members in an effort to meet some of the needs of non-4-H youth for educational programs.

The length of the activity is flexible to meet the needs of the program. Some subjects can be covered with one hour of instruction, but normally several meetings including a practical exercise will be required. School Enrichment Program

A school enrichment program is similar to a special interest group except that it is conducted during regular school hours usually in a classroom setting. Subjects taught usually coincide with school curriculum and provide enrichment to it.

Individual Members

Individual 4-H members complete enrollment forms and carry out projects just as 4-H club members do. They are not members of 4-H Clubs because for one reason or other they are unable to join. Normally this would be because there is no 4-H Club in that area of the county. Efforts are constantly being made to include them in a club.

Anyone interested in learning more about 4-H or wishing to get involved either as an adult volunteer or as a member should contact the Hancock County Extension 4-H Youth Agent at 467-5456.

Southern Association accredits Pass schools

The Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, through its Commission on Elementary Schools, has awarded continuing accreditation to Pass Christian Elementary, DeLisle Elementary and Pass Christian Middle School.

Through accreditation, faculty, students, and parents will benefit by knowing that conditions for teaching in accredited schools meet certain standards and that efforts are continuously made for school improvement.

Citizens are assured of accountability and of value for their tax dollars through the process of setting standards and the regular reevaluation of SACS member institutions.

Mississippi Ballet seeks interim funding

There is good news and bad news with the III USA International Ballet Competition.

A spokesman for Mississippi Ballet International, Inc., reports that income-producing projects under way can provide sufficient funds.

The bad news is that the organization needs ready cash to make the income-producing projects possible.

According to Mrs. W. T. Hogg of Jackson, president of non-profit MBI, "We have the proverbial Catch Communities with accredited schools can be confident that their institutions compare favorably with others, not only within the region, but throughout the nation.

Accredited schools are a "plus" for those who are interested in relocating their families and businesses.

Founded in 1895, the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools is one of six regional accrediting bodies in the United States.

More than 11,000 member public and private universities, colleges, junior colleges, occupational institutions, secondary schools, middle schools, and elementary schools enroll approximately five million students.

22 situation here. Monies from USA International Ballet Association memberships, competitors' application fees, students' registration fees, and the 'Mayor's Blue Ribbon Committee' all will be held untouched in an escrow account. We are pledged not to touch that money until we are certain we see that our present goal of $650,000 cash can be achieved."

Donations can be sent to Mississippi Ballet International, P.O. Box 55791, Jackson, MS 39216. For additional information, call 982-0662.

Mississippi Junior Round-Up is part of 1986 Dixie National

The Mississippi Junior Round-up will be held Sunday, Feb. 2, through Thursday, Feb. 6, in conjunction with the annual Dixie National Livestock Show at the Coliseum/Fairgrounds in Jackson.

"Each year, the Junior Round-up is one of the highlights of the Dixie National," said Agriculture Commissioner Jim Buck Ross, Chairman of the State Fair Commission which sponsors the Dixie National.

Billy Orr, director of the Coliseum/Fairgrounds, said, "The Junior Round-up gives Mississippi's youngsters a chance to show their top livestock."

"We're extremely proud of the young participants in the Round-up and their quality livestock," said Tommy Strickland, Livestock Manager, Fairgrounds.

The Junior Livestock must be in their respective barns by 6 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 2.

The first competition is the 4-H Livestock Judging Contest at 9:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 3, in the Coliseum. It will be followed by the 4-H Dairy Judging Contest at noon also in the Coliseum.

Competition Tuesday, Feb. 4, includes the Market Lamb Show at 8:30 a.m. in the Beef Arena and the Dairy Show also at 8:30 a.m. in the Coliseum. The day's final competition is a Steer Show scheduled for 4:30 p.m. in the Coliseum.

More judging is on the agenda

Wednesday, Feb. 5. It includes a Market Swine Show at 8:30 a.m. in the Junior Show Arena, a Commercial Heifer Show and Beef Breeding Show, both at 9 a.m. in the Coliseum.

Thursday at noon is the Sale of Champions in the Dixie Sales Arena. The 21st annual Dixie National Livestock Show will be held from Tuesday, Jan. 28, through Sunday, Feb. 16.

In addition to livestock judging and horse shows, the Dixie National also includes the Dixie National Rodeo.

The rodeo features performances starting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 6, in the Coliseum and ending Wednesday, Feb. 12. With the exception of a 2 p.m. matinee Saturday, Feb. 8, and a 2 p.m. performance Sunday, Feb. 9, all performances are at 7:30 p.m.

The rising young country group, Atlanta, and entertainer T. G. Sheppard headline this year's rodeo. Atlanta, composed of nine musicians, is best known for its hit, "Atlanta Burned Again Last Night."

Sheppard was involved in record promotions for 15 years before he became a star. His hits include, "I Feel Like Loving You Again" and "Smooth Sailing."

Atlanta sings during the rodeo beginning Thursday, Feb. 6, and continuing through Sunday, Feb. 9.

Sheppard performs three times beginning Monday, Feb. 10, and continuing through Wednesday, Feb. 12. Rodeo tickets are $8, $7 and $6. All seats are reserved.

Mail orders are currently being filled with the best seats available at the time the order is received.

For tickets, send check or money order to: Dixie National Rodeo, Post Office Box 892, Jackson, Mississippi 39205. Also include $2 for handling.

This year's rodeo will feature world champion cowboys competing for thousands of dollars in prize money.

In addition, cowgirls will vie for top honors in barrel racing.

USA waives some out-of-state tuition

Students from six Mississippi counties and four Florida counties will no longer pay out-of-state fees at the University of South Alabama beginning fall quarter, 1986.

The counties for which out-of-state fees will be waived include George, Harrison, Jackson, Pearl River, Stone and Hancock in Mississippi and Escambia, Santa Rosa, Walton and Okaloosa in Florida.

Students from these counties attending USA will pay the same as students from the state of Alabama.

According to Dr. Frederick P. Whiddon, president of the university, the decision was made by the USA Board of Trustees in response to complaints about the out-of-state fees from parents of students and area merchants.

Although the citizens of these Mississippi and Florida counties do not pay Alabama income tax, they do shop and often work in the Mobile area.

"The $100,000 or so we lose a year will be regained many times over in goodwill toward the university," said Whiddon. He estimated that if 50 or more students from these counties were attracted to USA by the move it would make up for any money lost.

At the present about 192 students from these Mississippi and Florida counties attend USA.

Unique art works on display at UNO

An art show featuring works in marquetry by Dr. Gerald Eberle and Chinese brush watercolors by Tina Soong will be on display through Feb. 22 in the lobby of the University of New Orleans Earl K. Long Library.

The exhibit, which is open to the public during library hours, serves to contrast and compliment works in the two media.

Normal library hours are 8 a.m. to midnight, Monday through Thursday; 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., Friday; 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday; and 1 to 10 p.m., Sunday.
